

Recently, the Contra Costa Times in California published an article about Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, and judging by the title, Rep. George Miller Delivers Millions For Campaign Contributor, you can be sure he was none to happy having his exploits exposed. The article draws at...

Recently, the Contra Costa Times in California published an article about Chairman of the Committee on Education and Labor, and judging by the title, Rep. George Miller Delivers Millions For Campaign Contributor you can be sure he was none to happy having his exploits exposed.

,

The article draws attention to a relationship between Mr. Miller and defense contractor SecuriMetrics, Inc, which is located in his district. The article goes on to detail the $4.6 million in federal funding Miller has managed to secure for the company.

Furthermore, Since 2004, Mr. Miller who is a staunch opponent of the war on terror, has also received & accepted over $16,090 in campaign contributions from current and past executives of SecuriMetrics. Meanwhile, he continued to acquire earmarks for SecuriMetrics. I think you can draw your own conclusion.

Moreover, this money is being used for product development; I bet you didn't know the money coming out of your paychecks would be going towards SecuriMetrics product development division...George Miller has seen a return on investment...have you?

Sadly, this story has become par for the course in Congress. It is ridiculous that Members of Congress can send taxpayer dollars to their districts in exchange for lucrative campaign contributions. Despite what some of my colleagues may believe, they are not money machines and I am intent on putting this practice to an end.